Msgr. Bill's Weekly Letter...

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

CNA (part of EWTN) posted this article and I think it is worthy of greater exposure.

Pope Francis: Gender ideology is the ugliest danger of our time

Addressing participants in the international Symposium "Man-Woman: Image of God." Pope Francis describes so-called gender ideology as the "ugliest danger" of our time, because it cancels out all differences that make humanity unique. (By Lisa Zengarini)

Pope Francis on Friday again spoke out against gender theory describing it as an "ugly ideology of our time", because it erases all distinctions between men and women. To cancel this difference "is to erase humanity. Man and woman, instead, exist in a fruitful 'tension'", he said.

The Symposium

The remarks came as he opened his address to participants in the international Symposium "Man-Woman: Image of God. Towards an Anthropology of Vocations" held in the Vatican on March 1-2.

The Congress is organized by Cardinal Marc Ouellet, Prefect Emeritus of the Dicastery for Bishops, together with the Centre for Research and Anthropology of Vocations (CRAV) and is a follow-up to the previous 2022 Symposium dedicated to the theology of the priesthood.

Introducing his address the Pope said he still has a cold and asked his assistant, Monsignor Filippo Ciampanelli, to read it out for him, "so I don't get so fatigued." In the prepared text the Pope reflected on the theme of the Congress which is aimed first of all at highlighting the anthropological dimension of every vocation.

The human person is a vocation.

Indeed, he remarked, "the life of the human being is a vocation" which has a relational character: "I exist and live in relation to who generated me, to the reality that transcends me, to others, and to the world around me, in which I am called to embrace a specific and personal mission with joy and responsibility."

"Each one of us discovers and expresses oneself as called, as a person who realizes oneself in listening and response, sharing our being and gifts with others for the common good."

This fundamental anthropological truth is sometimes overlooked in today's cultural context, where human beings tend to be reduced to their mere material and primary needs. Yet, Pope Francis said, they are more than this: created by God in His own image, man and woman "carry within themselves a desire for eternity and happiness that God himself has planted in their hearts and that they are called to fulfil through a specific vocation."

"Our being in the world is not a mere fruit of chance, but we are part of a design of love and are invited to go out of ourselves and realize it, for ourselves and for others," the Pope said. "We are called to happiness, to the fullness of life, to something great to which God has destined us."

We all have a mission in Church and society.

Recalling Cardinal Saint John Henry Newman's "Meditations and Prayers", Pope Francis further remarked that not only have we all been entrusted with a mission, but "each and every one of us is a mission."

The Pope therefore welcomed the symposium and the studies conducted on this topic because, he said, "they spread awareness of the vocation to which every human being is called by God", and are also useful to reflect on today's challenges, on the ongoing anthropological crisis, and on the need to promote human and Christian vocations.

Promoting a more effective "circularity" of vocations

He also emphasized the importance of promoting "a more effective circularity" of the different types of vocations in the Church, including lay vocations, ordained ministry, and consecrated life so they "can contribute to generating hope in a world overwhelmed by death."

"Generating this hope, placing oneself at the service of the Kingdom of God to build an open and fraternal world is a mission entrusted to every woman and man of our time," he said.

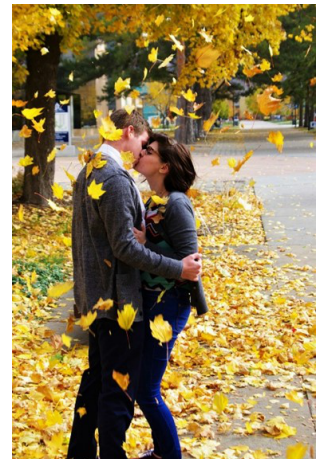

The courage to seek God's will.

Closing his address, Pope Francis encouraged the participants in the Symposium not to shy away from risks in seeking God's will in their work, reminding them a living faith is not an artifact in a museum: "The Holy Spirit asks of us fidelity, but fidelity moves, and often leads us to take risks", he said.

Ideas have consequences and if not careful can lead one to disaster in this world. We should always beware of reality. Reality WILL come to bear sooner or later, it ALWAYS happens. God never makes a mistake. We on the other hand, make a lot of them. It behooves us to go along with the creator of reality.

pace – bene,

Msgr. Bill

VOCATIONS CORNER

María Antonia of St. Joseph (Mama Antula)

1730-1799

Consecrated Laywoman

Pope Francis canonized Argentina's first female saint, María Antonia of St. Joseph — known affectionately in her home country as “Mama Antula” — in a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica on Sunday, February 11.

María Antonia was born into a wealthy family in 1730 and expressed a fervent desire to serve God at a young age. She spent the early part of her ministry helping parents with the instruction of their children and administering care to the sick and poor.

Following the expulsion of the Jesuits from the Spanish Empire by King Charles III, she traveled around northern Argentina by foot to safeguard and promote Ignatian spirituality, organizing retreats despite the widespread hostility to the Jesuits. She also universalized their scope, calling absolutely everyone to participate, regardless of social class, profession, or any other difference.

After the success of these early retreats, she expanded her reach into other regions of Argentina and relocated to Buenos Aires in 1779. While denied permission by imperial authorities to restore the Ignatian tradition, her perseverance paid off when a year later she earned the trust of the local bishop, culminating in the establishment of the House for Spiritual Exercises in Buenos Aires.

She died on March 7, 1799, in Buenos Aires and was buried in the cemetery of the Church of the Pietà there. Her body was later moved inside the church and has become a popular pilgrimage destination.

In addition to being the first saint to have been born and died on what is today Argentinean soil, she is considered by some as a true founder of the Argentinean nation: not because of her political activity, but because of her tireless proclamation of the gospel that left its mark on the religious and cultural identity of the Argentines.

Mama Antula's feast day will be celebrated in March.

In today's Gospel, God demonstrates great love for us by sending His Son so that we may believe in Him. You demonstrate our great love for God by doing good works: reaching out to others, acting in justice and charity. Through your almsgiving you are performing a good work; far greater than you think. Know that your nickel, dime, quarter or dollar is multiplied by coins placed by others in the St. Jude Collection Box.

Do you consider yourself a naturally caring, compassionate and giving person? If so, share your gifts with people in need by joining the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. In particular, the society needs more members with Spanish speaking skills. Please contact Matt Ryan, 713-494-7002, ryan-matt1@gmail.com.

En el Evangelio de hoy, Dios demuestra un gran amor por nosotros al enviar a Su Hijo para que creamos en Él. Demuestras nuestro gran amor a Dios haciendo buenas obras: extendiendo la mano a los demás, actuando con justicia y caridad. Con vuestra limosna estáis realizando una buena obra; mucho mayor de lo que piensas. Sepa que sus monedas de cinco centavos, diez centavos, veinticinco centavos o dólares se multiplican por las monedas colocadas por otras personas en la Caja de Colección de St. Jude.

¿Te consideras una persona naturalmente solidaria, compasiva y generosa? Si es así, comparte tus dones con personas necesitadas uniéndote a la Sociedad de San Vicente de Paúl. En particular, la sociedad necesita más miembros que hablen español. Comuníquese con Matt Ryan, 713-494-7002, ryanmatt1@gmail.com.
